four years ago, nor does it see that fortunes had disappeared. On the contrary, pictures never sold better than they do now. As for the clergy, they never, properly speaking, expended much money on Art. Cathedrals had always been built and decorated by kings, princes, and religious congregations. It is rather the want of zealous faith than the poverty of the clergy to which Mr. Faucher should attribute the misfortune that he deploras." After the speech the rewards were distributed, and we will quote the names of those who received the highest. Decamps was made an officer of the Legion of Honor; and Diaz, Jollivet, Léon Fleury, Maxtime, David, and Giraud, painters, Desbœuf sculptor, and Achille Lefevre, engraver, were created chevaliers of that order. Medals of the first class were awarded as follows:—in Painting, to Messrs. Antigna, Hébert and Barrias; in Sculpture and Medal Engraving, to Messrs. Lequesne and Pallet; in Engraving and Lithography, to M. Alphonse François; and in Architecture, to M. Bouchet.

The Artiste speaks of a book-case which has been sent to the Fair in London, and is a marvel of beauty. The bas-reliefs for the doors and the frieze are taken from Ghiberti's celebrated gates of the Baptistery of Florence. The upper pediment contains the Pensiero of Michael Angelo, and the Night and Twilight of the same artist, while for the remainder of the decoration, the distinguished French sculptor Clesinger has made the designs, which are every way worthy, it is said, of the others with which they are united. The materials employed are bronze and ebony.

ART IN GERMANY.—On Saturday, May 31, RAUCH's Statue of Frederick the Great, was unveiled at Berlin with much pomp and ceremony. The king and chief dignitaries were present, and among others eighty soldiers who had served under the Great King. The Weekly News describes the statue as follows:—

"The statue is said to be the most magnificent work of art of the kind that the world possesses. It is about forty feet high, rather of a pyramidal form, having two bases. At the pinnacle is the colossal equestrian statue of Frederick, which though executed with astonishing force and life, is by no means the most attractive part of this marvellous monument. Round the lower base, at its four corners, are four other equestrian statues, of the Prince of Prussia, the Duke of Brunswick, and Generals Seidlitz and Ziethern, three of whom were the most illustrious captains of the Great King. Between the four corner statues are, in the most animated haut-relief, other figures. On one of the broad sides Winderfelt Dieskau, Prince Eugene of Wurtemberg, and Temenzien; and on the opposite side Leopold Max Von Dessau, Wedell, Wurtemberg Von Goltz, and Gessler. On the front basement are the figures of Generals Lestwitz, Prittwitz, Von Halseu, Marshal Keith, and the Margrave of Brandenburg. The hinder slab is devoted to literary men and artists, and there we see Kant, Lessing, Count Carmer, Fink, Schlambendorf and Graun. Every figure is a striking likeness, and all the different groups come out so vividly and boldly, that one can hardly, at a first inspection at least, withdraw one's attention from these beauties of detail to contemplate the grand colossal figure at the summit. The first stone of the statue was laid in the last year of the reign of the late king. It has been in the hands of the sculptor, M. RAUCH, for eleven years."

A correspondent of the London Athenæum states that a process has just been discovered by a German artist, likely to supersede much of the labor of engraving on wood. Instead of making a drawing on a block of wood, the German artist makes his on a piece of paper, from which impressions can be taken ad infinitum, without destroying the original drawing, and with an effect that clearly resembles a fair average style of the wood engraver's art. The secret, probably, resides in the chemical preparation of the paper on which the original design is made, as the drawings can be executed with a common lead pencil.

THE DISTRIBUTION OF THE ENGRAVINGS OF 1850.

The members of 1850 are informed, that prints from the large engravings of Anne Page, Slender and Shallow, and copies of the first number of The Gallery of American Art, containing the five engravings of The Image Breaker, The Dream of Arcadia, The New Scholar, Dover Plains, and The Card Players, will be delivered during the month of July, to those members whose certificates are numbered under No. 12,500. The particulars of future deliveries will be announced from time to time in the Bulletin.
